WELCOME TO THE THIRD & LATEST EDITION OF ORLANDO NEWS.

If you found this newsletter because you have just typed Orlando into Google and were looking for details on a holiday destination, sorry you are not in the right place. Don't leave though, perhaps you might find this newsletter of interest or know someone else who will.

SINCE LAST TIME...

Since the last edition things have been fairly slow in terms of processing Orlando material, mainly because of Christmas and a few issues on the personal domestic front. Hopefully things will get back to normality soon.

FIRST WORLD WAR CENTENARY

Last time I mentioned about the obvious First World War Centenary. What I did not mention was that the Society for One-Place Studies (www.one-place-studies.org) is undertaking a Joint project. Members who have registered a study with the Society are welcomed to take part. There is an online hangout this Friday (24th Jan 2014) at the Society Google+ Community where the project will be discussed more fully. The hangout will be archived at the Societies YouTube Channel (<https://plus.google.com/+One-place-studiesOrg/videos>)

This is of particular interest to me as my Orlando's are from Sutera in Sicily and Sutera is registered with the Society for One-Place Studies.

Meanwhile, the Guild of One-Name Studies has a dedicated website for the First World War Centenary at (<http://ww1.one-name.org/>) there are no Orlando's listed at present although I do hope to rectify that in the coming months.

Structure is everything.....

DNA

If you read the last edition of Orlando News you would have seen that I made mention of the DNA Conference that was held at the Royal Society in London. I also mentioned the conference on the Orlando Blog (<http://orlando-ons.blogspot.co.uk/2013/12/dna-public-lecture-professor-ludovic.html>) one of the speakers was Professor Orlando from the University of Copenhagen. I have managed to archive the various talks by Professor Orlando at the Orlando webpage (<http://www.orlando-ons.co.uk/recordings---professor-ludovic-orlando.html>) and of course the copyright of the material remains with the Professor and the relevant organisation's.

NEWSLETTER ARCHIVES

The newsletter is archived with the Guild of One Name Studies. I have also approached the British Library for an ISSN Number and as such each edition is lodged with them. Are there any organization which you of would like a digital copy? If there are please let me know.

ORLANDO's DOWN UNDER!

Although the master index and transference of data onto the website has been somewhat slow I have come across a series of ORLANDO's from South Australia. Extracted from the site <http://www.genealogysa.org.au/> I now need to process those Orlando's and a few I located at the Cemeteries site <http://austcemindex.com/index.php?surname=orlando>

Hopefully by the time of the next newsletter I will have recovered from the domestic chaos and processed the Aussie Orlando's. Not to mention made a little bit of a dent in the already gathered material.

Next edition is due April 2014.

Until next time

Julie
